IMPARTIAL, BUT NEUTRAL.

SHANGHAI, SATURDAY, JULY 9 1864.

WE publish in another column a letter addressed by the U. S. Minister to the Consul General, and, through the latter, to the American Consuls at all the open ports in China. As an exposition of the rights of the Chinese government when brought into contact with foreign powers, the letter to which we refer is worthy of the closest attention. The principle upon which it rests is clearly defined—the right of a government, whether Eastern or Western, to impose whatever restrictions may seem to it necessary on trade or on intercourse between foreigners and natives—such restrictions not infringing either the letter or spirit of Treaty stipulations. This principle is obviously most important, more especially in a country such as China, where foreigners belonging to Treaty powers possess exterritorial rights. If foreign governments decide to punish most severely any infringement of their exclusive right of jurisdiction over their respective nationals, it is only fair to diminish as much as possible the chance of local officials, in the interior or at the ports, feeling themselves compelled for their own protection to take the law into their own hands. Knowing, as we do, the vast number of unprincipled adventurers who throng to this country, and take every advantage of its disorganised state to render confusion worse confounded, it would not be fair to legislate exclusively for the immunity of foreigners from native modes of punishment, unless we also provided against the occurrence of crimes in which these represented foreigners may be the chief actors. Indeed some short time since, when the share taken by foreigners in the disturbances which threatened the wreck of the country, was so marked, it was a serious question whether in the interests of law and order it might not be advisable temporarily to waive the exterritorial privileges, and, by the sacrifice of a few unprincipled wretches who disgraced the countries whose protection they claim, afford a warning to others who might be anxious to emulate the fame of their predecessors. For this reason the U. S. Minister lays particular stress on the obligation which rests on the representatives of foreign powers to punish infractions of the treaty, and by "a wise discretion" to restrict the operation of the passport system to those who can afford valid proofs of their respectability. Were this not carried out, the interior of the country would soon be flooded by desperadoes who, besides inflicting unnumbered wrongs on the luckless inhabitants, would cause the foreign name to fall into disrepute. We have taken many opportunities of protesting against the system by which, instead of teaching the Chinese how to perform the duties incumbent on them, we take matters into our own hands, and act as though the country were under our protection. It will be noticed that this practice is reprobated by the U S. Minister, and, in the case of jurisdiction over native or unrepresented foreigners, is positively forbidden. The rights of the foreign powers and of the native government are equally involved in this regulation, for while we possess no claim whatsoever to jurisdiction over the natives, we ought not to be compelled to effect what, under the provisions of the Treaty, the Chinese are bound to effect for us. The same argument applies to the entrance of foreigners into the service of the Imperial government for the protection of the districts surrounding the open ports. It will, doubtless, be impossible, until after the lapse of many years, for the Chinese to dispense altogether with foreign aid We may even say that the period at which such an event will be possible is at present so far distant as to be totally beyond our ken. But at the same time, we cordially respond to the hope expressed by the ministers, that the Chinese shall eventually triumph over their difficulties, and be enabled to conduct the affairs of the country without foreign aid. The Letter contains many other points of importance, besides those which we have noticed above. We can, however, do no more than refer briefly to the caution recommended in extending the protection of foreign flags to purchased vessels. The piratical lorchas which last year went far towards ruining native trade on the Yang-tsze, in many instances flew the American flag, and that flag was in all cases either flown without any authorisation whatsoever, or with papers fraudulently obtained through interested and unprincipled foreigners. The co-operation policy recommended by Mr. Burlingame must produce increased facilities for trade and for the other advantages which will result from intercourse with the Chinese, when that intercourse is established on a proper basis. Indeed so long as the representatives of Western powers present an unbroken front, and do not, by pressing conflicting interests, neutralise the influence which each one possesses by virtue of his office, the Chinese will be convinced that the policy of foreign nations is not selfish, but is directed towards the furtherance of the general prosperity of the world.

THE fact that the Land Renters have separated a second time without concluding any definite arrangement regarding the expenditure to be incurred, and the revenue to be raised during the current year, is a sufficient proof of the necessity, urged by Mr. Antrobus, for some alteration in the system of government. If the gentlemen who accept a seat in the Municipal Council are liable to be required to produce an entirely new budget because one or two of us in the first do not meet the views of some of the Land Renters; if they are required to render themselves liable for enormous loans, expended for the benefit of persons who decline to share the responsibility of their repayment; and are, after all, to be liable to censure for discharging to the best of their judgment, duties for which they receive no recompense, it will soon be found impossible to induce gentlemen of the required position in the community to undertake so arduous and thankless an office. It is true that a resolution to the effect that all Land Renters should be called on to sign a deed indemnifying the members of the Council for the responsibility they incur, was carried by a small majority. But no power exists to compel the minority to sign such a document, and, judging from the uneasiness of the circular letter which was sent round with the same object, it is to be feared the proposed measure will still not meet with the support it deserves.

It is so self-evident that there must be a limit to taxation, even of long-suffering Chinese, that it was hardly worth while to urge it in the variety of different forms in which it has been expressed by some Land Renters at the last two meetings. It would have been more practical and useful, if those gentlemen who objected to the budget, instead of allowing themselves to be so completely overcome by the magnitude of the total, had discussed each proposed tax calmly, and shewn forth whatever obstacles they conceived would render its collection impossible. The tax on bankers is the only one which has been so treated, and has been so generally condemned as unfair and excessive that it will probably not appear, or at least be inserted in a very modified form, in the new budget which the Council have been requested to prepare. The gravest objection to which the other proposed new taxes appear open, now that no opposition is to apprehended from their Chinese, is that the probable proceeds have been over-estimated. Gambling-houses, brothels and opium-shops are certainly legitimate objects of taxation, and judging from the thriving trade they appear to be driving, ten houses must be well able to contribute their quota towards the public expenses. The payment of one dollar in three months for a pass for his servant, will not press very heavily on each individual foreigner; while its exaction is a step towards making a class of the community contribute towards the public expenses, who have hitherto derived the full benefit of the Municipal improvements without contributing in a very appreciable degree towards defraying their cost. The Council, in fact, appears to have been sent back to prepare a new budget without any more definite instructions than an objection to the tax on bankers, and a sweeping protest against the general magnitude of their expenditure. The town hall which, by eschewing drains and under-paving an inferior class of policemen, the French have been enabled to erect, appears so completely to dazzle the eyes of one or two Renters, that they are unable to take any view of our own Municipal arrangements, over which the brilliant monument of fiscal ingenuity does not cast a shade. For ourselves, however, we must confess that, while fully appreciating the advantages of such an edifice and giving our neighbours every credit for the energy and enterprise which prompted its construction, we prefer our drains and our more respectable class of police, as more conducive to the general comfort and well-being. It is easy to characterise the expenditure of the English Council as enormously great, and to suggest that it be immediately reduced; but unless it be shewn that the taxes by which this expenditure is to be met are excessive and impracticable, we see no reason why the advantages derivable from this large expenditure should be abandoned, for no other reason than for the sake of reducing our expenses more nearly to a level with those of our neighbours. It is undoubtedly desirable that the existing debt should not be added to; we trust therefore that the new budget will shew a balance of revenue and expenditure, but we do not imagine the Council will deem it necessary to abandon any of the new taxes they purpose to levy, unless it be that on native bankers; although they may possibly see cause to modify their estimates of the probable proceeds. Without, therefore, drawing up an entirely new budget, they will probably meet the wishes of the majority of the Land Renters if they reduce the estimates of expenditure sufficiently to make the two sides of the account balance. To effect this, it will no doubt be necessary to dispense with the services of a portion of the additional police force which it had been purposed to raise

Summary of the Week.

THE heat has been intense during the past week, and probably from this cause, we have little local news to lay before our readers. The principal aim of existence at present being to sit quietly under a punkah, it is not to be expected that any very stirring events will occur. Our American fellow citizens celebrated the anniversary of the declaration of independence on Monday last with great enthusiasm; a pyrotechnic display took place in the evening under the management of Mr. Gors. A meeting of the North-China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society was held on Thursday, when an interesting paper was read by Dr. Henderson on the Chinese. A brief sketch of his lecture will be found among the minutes of the proceedings, in another column. We alluded in our daily issue of the 7th instant to a visit recently paid by H. M. S. Sparllow to the Bugged Islands which have been suggested, as offering a suitable site for a sanitarium, as they are in the fairway between Shanghai and Ningpo, and steamers plying between these two ports could therefore easily drop intending visitors. The coast is rocky, and offers considerable difficulties in landing in any but calm weather. The largest island, however, offers several eligible sites for a hotel, and possesses several springs of fresh water. A report has reached us from Nanking of the death of Hung-siu-tsuen on the 6th ultimo. The news was communicated to the Che-kiang of Keeling by a spy who left Nanking about the close of last month. The scarcity of rice in the city is said to be so severe that food is commanding incredible prices.

An expedition which left Soochow to complete the subjugation of the southern portion of the province has succeeded in capturing the city of Chang-shing, situated between Yih-shing and Hoochow

By advices from Yokohama dated the 30th ultimo, we learn that a soldier of the 20th Regiment has been sentenced to six months imprisonment for assaulting a native farmer. We congratulate the authorities on the promptness with which they punished the outrage.

FROM the CHE-KIANG province we learn that the apprehensions felt as to the effect of the destruction of the sea wall on the north side of Hangchow bay have proved well founded, although naturally somewhat exaggerated. At present at each tide a space of about fifty square miles is covered by salt water, and is, of course, thus rendered utterly unfit for cultivation. It is supposed that Hangchow is about fifteen feet higher than Shanghai, hence the brackishness noticed in the water of some of the creeks running into the Wong-poo. The Chinese estimate that a sum of three millions of Taels will be necessary in order to restore the wall to its former state, and even then that an annual expenditure of three hundred thousand Taels will be rendered necessary. The members of the surveying expedition sent down from Shanghai to report on the wall, state that to construct an adequate barrier, an outlay of five millions of Taels would be requisite but in this case fifty thousand Taels would amply suffice for annual repairs

A correspondent at HANKOW reports that a Cantonman was, on the 20th ultimo, shot by Dr. Rice, a medical man lately established at that port. It would seem that a crowd had collected in front of Rice's residence to watch the performances usual at the Dragon feast, which was going on at the time. Some of the crowd were forced in the house, and Rice, to frighten them or to compel their departure, fired off three chambers of his revolver, which he states he believed was loaded with powder only. A Chinaman was, however, shot through the heart, and Rice has been tried, convicted and sentenced to a fine of five hundred dollars, and deportation.

POLITICAL RELATIONS OF FOREIGNERS WITH THE CHINESE.

THE U.S.A. MINISTER AT PEKING TO THE U.S.A. CONSUL GENERAL.

Legation of the United States,
Peking, June 15th, 1864.

SIR,

From many letters received by me from the ports, it appears that a misunderstanding prevails as to the extent of the rights and duties of American citizens under the treaty, and the regulations made in pursuance thereof. I have felt, therefore, that it might facilitate the administration of our affairs, if I express my opinions in relation to those questions about which there has been controversy. I accordingly address you, and through you the other Consuls and my countrymen, giving my construction of the treaty and regulations, upon several disputed points, as well as a few directions in relation to ships, passports, &c.; and some general suggestions in reference to the co-operative policy agreed upon by the representatives of the Treaty Powers at Peking.

I hold that the Chinese Government has the right, as an incident of its unyielded sovereignty, to enforce its own revenue laws, and to make such regulations as may be necessary to that end. [See Rules 6 and 10 of the Supplementary Treaty, and my dispatches to the Department of State, approved by Government, Nos 30 and 32.]

That the foreign Minister, when notified of regulations, if he find them to be in accordance with the treaty, is, after having in his diplomatic character done what he could to perfect them, under obligation to notify them to his countrymen upon whom they then become binding. [See letter of E. Hammond to the British Government in reply to the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, and dispatches of British and American Ministers in relation to the Yangtsze regulations, approved by their Governments.]

That no authority inferior to that which made and approved the regulations can absolve persons from their observance.

That the Chinese Government having by treaty yielded jurisdiction over the persons of our citizens so that it cannot punish them even by fine, it is obligatory upon us to punish them for infractions of the Treaty and regulations. [See dispatch of Mr. Marshall to Mr. Macy, Nov. 25th, 1853, and same to Mr. Cunningham, Vice-consul at Shanghai, Dec. 1st, 1853; Mr. Cushing to Mr. Macy, Sept. 9th, 1855, Fitzroy Kelly and James Stephen, Temple, May 22nd, 1861.]

The manner of doing this is pointed out in Sec. 7 of the Act of Congress approved June 22nd, 1860. It is to be done through the Consuls, the minister only having original jurisdiction in cases of felony, murder and rebellion, and where a Consul is interested. [See Secs. 13, 24 and 27 of the Act.]

The Chinese Government cannot withdraw a Consul's exequatur, for it has yielded this right under the law of nations, in the grant of entire jurisdiction over our citizens. Besides, the Consuls in China have a peculiar status; they are judicial officers, and exercise many powers under the treaty unknown to similar functionaries in the West. [See my dispatch (72) and correspondence with the Chinese Government, also letters of Mr. Cushing to Sec. Marcy, Nov. 7th, 1854, and Oct. 8th, 1855.]

That, though the Chinese Government may not sue in the Consular Court as a party to the record, still it may go there to make complaint and to give information, which the Consul is bound to entertain. This is political action. [See Cushing, idem, G. Wingrove Cooke and James Bennett, Temple, Jan. 13th, 1862. Ib.

If the Consul shall fail to do his duty in respect to punishment, then the question becomes one for reference to the "superior officers of the government, "who shall see that full inquiry and "strict justice shall be had in the pre"mises." [Art. 10 of the Treaty.]

The Chinese Government cannot be compelled to plead in the Consular Court at the suit of any one;—hence, controversies between the consulates and the customs, if they cannot be arranged, become diplomatic questions to be referred to Peking. [See Cushing, idem. Sir Frederick Bruce in re Bunnon ex Fitzroy, Bluebook No. 3, approved by British Government, also my dispatch to Mr. Mangum, Consul at Ningpo, Dec. 9th, 1862 in case of the gun "Agnes," approved by U. S. Government.]

A citizen of the United States in the Chinese customs' service, cannot, in that character, be held to answer in the Consular Court of his country for acts done in the line of his official duty under the orders of the Chinese Government. In such case the remedy is against that Government. [Opinion of Sir William Atherton et al. Ms, Temple, March 6th, 1862.]

The Chinese Government may confiscate goods landed in breach of port regulations, but only those in respect to which the infringement of the regulation was committed—that is to say, those landed and not those still on board. [Sir F. Bruce in case of the "Blackburn," Bluebook No. 3.—Also my dispatches in case of the "Agnes," and that of Prince Kung admitting this doctrine.]

In cases of fine, where the words "not exceeding" are attached to the penalty, the consul may fix a smaller sum; but where the sum is fixed there is no option, and the consul upon proof must inflict the fine, and all efforts to mitigate such fine must proceed upon equitable grounds, and not as matter of legal right. [Sir F. Bruce in case of the "Blackburn."]

Only three ports are now by treaty open to trade on the River Yangtsze, viz., Chinkiang, Kiukiang and Hankow; and trade at any other ports subjects ship and cargo to confiscation. There can be no trade, directly or indirectly, by tacit consent of local authorities.—By towing and permitting the Chinese to cut the line where they please, or in any manner whatsoever. [See Art. 14 of U. S. Treaty, and Acts. 30 and viz. 10, 11, of British Treaty in connection therewith; also Provisional Arrangements for the navigation of the R. Yangtsze, Dec. 5th 1861; and those adopted Nov. 10th, 1862, and approved by British and American Governments.]

If the Chinese authorities confiscate without sufficient proof of breach of regulations, then the aggrieved party may, through the consul, appeal against such action to the minister at Peking, whose duty it will be to proclaim against the Chinese Government; but in no case is the citizen, or the consul for him, to take the law into his own hands. This would relieve the Chinese Government from that responsibility which should attach to it, and render all friendly relations impossible.—[Sir F. Bruce, in case of the "Pearl"; also his correspondence with Consul Gingell at Hankow approved by the British Government; and instructions to Admiral Kuper, Bluebook No. 3.]

To secure an honest application of the confiscation power, I have, in conjunction with my colleagues, urged the establishment of a joint tribunal, or mixed commission, to sit in cases of confiscation. The Chinese authorities have yielded this in principle, leaving the details to be arranged by the consuls and local authorities—first at Shanghai provisionally, and afterwards at the other treaty ports if found to work well. This will satisfy both sides, and facilitate settlements at the ports; or, if the case shall come to Peking, by classification and arrangement of the evidence, make decisions practicable. [See dispatch of Prince Kung to me, Jan. 13th, 1864.]

The greatest care should be taken before extending the protection of the American flag to purchased vessels. The proof of citizenship and the bona fide character of the purchase should be required. The flag should not be lent or sold to dishonor, or "be abused by the subjects of other nations as a cover for "the violation of the laws of the empire." [Consular Manual, page 273, and regulations of the Treasury Department there referre to. Also U. S. Treaty, Art. 14.]

A wise discretion should be exercised by the consuls in granting passports to travel into the interior. The right to grant these is derived from Art 9 of the British Treaty through the favored-nation clause (Art. 30). And though I do not hold that we are bound to take the construction of a treaty from the power through which we derive a privilege, still a desire for uniformity would suggest that such construction should receive our respectful consideration. [See my dispatch No. 26, approved by the Government.]

I therefore call your attention to Sir Frederick Bruce's Circular of Nov. 21st, 1860 to the British consuls, approved by his Government, and commend its several suggestions to you for your guidance. "When an application is made by a "person, claiming to be a native citizen "of the United States, for a passport, "before it be granted, he should make a "written declaration to that effect, stating "also his age and place of birth, which "paper should be filed. The consul may "however require such other evidence as "he may deem necessary to establish the "fact of the applicant's citizenship. If "the applicant claims to be a naturalised "citizen, he should be required to pro"duce either the original or a certified "copy of his certificate of naturalisation, "or such other evidence as shall be fully "satisfactory to the consul." [Extract from Instructions to the Diplomatic Agents of the United States, page 17; and my letter to Acting Consul Pomeroy at Tientsin.]

I have already written you in relation to the so-called concessions. There are no such things as concessions in the sense generally understood by that term. It is the right of our citizens to buy, sell, and live in any part of the treaty ports; and my claim by a Treaty Power of a concession of territory from the Chinese Government, by virtue of which it can exercise jurisdiction over the persons or property of our citizens, would, if admitted, be an abridgment of our rights. [See dispatch of Mr. Marshall to Mr. Marcy, July 26th, 1853, with history of efforts of Consuls Grimsold and Cunningham against concession claims, and disavowal by the British Government of concession views through Consul Alcock. Letter of Sir Frederick Bruce to Consul Medhurst approved by British Government; and my dispatch (42) approved by U. S. Government in Mr. Seward's dispatch (40), and that in relation to Municipal affairs at Shanghai (37), approved by Government.]

We have no right, for municipal or other purposes, to take jurisdiction of Chinese, or of the subjects of non-treaty powers, even though requested to do so by the Chinese authorities. We should seek to strengthen the Chinese administration in the direction of order, to see to it that they should not shirk their treaty obligations. [See my letter to Consul-general Seward, and Sir F. Bruce to Consul Sir Harry Parkes at Shanghai.]

With reference to the entrance of American citizens into the Chinese service, I can only say that there can be no objection to their entrance into the civil service; but there are strong objections to their active participation in the strife in which this people is unhappily engaged. The penalty for entering the rebel service is well known; and the Decree of my predecessor Mr. McLane, of December 5th 1854, is still unrepealed, against taking military or naval service under the Government against the insurgents. In the peril of our interests at Shanghai from the rebels, this decree was not enforced; but subsequent events, leading to the death of General Ward and the Burgevine imbroglio, convinced me that the taking of such service not only endangered our relations with China, but might lead to complications with other treaty powers. I accordingly, in my dispatch No. 44, expressed myself in this sense, and my views were "specially commended" by the Government. I therefore reiterate them to the end that such service may be discouraged. The British Government has already withdrawn its permission to its officers to take military service; and every effort has been, and is being, made, by the British Minister at Peking, to induce the Chinese to strengthen themselves so as to relieve the British Government, not only from the expense of keeping troops in China, but from the common danger of a Chinese force headed by adventurers.

Major Gordon, who has done so well, earnestly wishes to be relieved, but is retained by a common sense of danger until he can weed the force of its dangerous elements, and hand it over safely to the entire control of the comparatively well drilled and patriotic Chinese officers. Mr. Berthemy, the enlightened representative of France, is equally desirous with the British Minister of removing all cause of expense and anxiety to his country, and looks forward with hope to the day when the Chinese shall triumph over their difficulties, and be able to maintain order without external aid. I am happy also to inform you that Mr. Vlangali, the able Minister of Russia, is deeply impressed with the importance of reducing that adventurous element, which, if fostered, can only lead to disaster in China.

At an early period of my mission, I was instructed by the Government to co-operate with the other Treaty Powers in China. In my dispatch No. 42, you will find a history of my efforts in that direction, and of the policy agreed upon; that policy has been fully approved by our Government, and I believe the first of every other Treaty Power. It is briefly this:—To consult and co-operate in China upon all material questions; to defend the treaty ports so far as shall be necessary to maintain our treaty rights; to support the foreign customs' service in a pure administration and upon a cosmopolitan basis; to encourage the Chinese Government in its efforts to maintain order; to neither ask for nor take concessions of territory in the treaty ports, nor in any manner to interfere with the jurisdiction of the Chinese Government over its own people, nor ever menace the territorial integrity of the Chinese Empire.

I call your attention to this policy in order that you may know the commitments of our own Government and ourselves with the other Treaty Powers. You will perceive that we are making an effort to substitute, fair diplomatic action in China for force; that we seek to do justice that we may have justice, and thus co-operation becomes the rule in carrying out these relations. It should be sincere; and to be effective requires, in the first place, a predisposition to get on well with one's colleagues; and, in the second, that just moderation which cannot fail to win the respect and confidence of one's associates.

While such are our obligations with respect to the foreign representatives in China, they are equally strong towards the Chinese officials, whether native or foreign, for it is through these that we maintain our relations with China, and any want of courtesy or consideration for them at once re-acts upon ourselves, and destroys our power for usefulness. [See my dispatch approving the conduct of Consul Clark at Futchau.]

Hoping for your continued support, together with that of the other Consuls and my countrymen generally, of the views I have expressed, and the generous policy I have stated.

I am, Sir,
Your obedient Servant,
ANSON BURLINGAME.

P.S.—I have submitted the above letter to the British, French and Russian Ministers, and they authorise me to inform you that they entirely approve of its views and policy.

PEKING GAZETTES.

(June 3rd, 1864.)

LI HUNG-CHANG reports the help that was obtained from a god, and requests that a commemorative tablet may be erected.

Such is the substance of his despatch.

The Imperial army in Kwangsi having surrounded the city of Chang-chow, floods of rain descended both by night and by day, and rendered it all but impossible to fire the guns. But the Governor reverentially addressing Kuan-ti, and begging his aid, the sun immediately appeared, and at the moment of attacking the city the wind veered round as an answer to the prayer. Guns, muskets and other fire arms were suddenly endowed with a force which they had not possessed before. Thus was Chang-chow-fu taken without delay.

Li Hung-chang further states that he has made careful enquiries as to Chang-chow-fu, and has discovered that it was in the tenth year of the Emperor whose style was Hsien-feng, the fourth month and the sixth day between twelve and two o'clock, that the city was taken by the rebels, while it was recaptured on the sixth day of the fourth month of the year, and at the same hour.

We have considered the above despatch, and are, in truth, much moved by it. We order the doctors of the southern library respectfully to write an inscription for a tablet to be transmitted to Li Hung-chang, who will reverently place it in the temple of Kuan-ti at Chang-chow. We also present ten sticks of Thibetan incense to the shrine to mark our gratitude to the Divinity.

Respect this.

(June 16th 1864.)

FORMERLY, on account of Gordon's having acted as leader of our Imperial forces against the enemy, and having assisted to take Chang-chow, We issued an Edict, expressing our will that he should be elevated to the honorary rank of Ti-tu, and should be presented from ourself with a banner and a medal to mark our appreciation of his services. Li Hung-chang now reports that the "Ever victorious army" which Gordon used to lead has been disbanded in the most satisfactory manner, and he begs us to bestow further distinction on Gordon's head. Such is the substance of his despatch. Since the spring of last year Gordon has headed the "Ever victorious army," and aided the ordinary Imperial forces in the subjugation of Fushan, the relief of Chang-shu-hsien, the capture of Taitsang-chou, Quan-san-hsien, Wu-kong-hsien, and, at last, (towards the close of the year) the provincial city of Soochow. Then again he this year captured Yih-shing-hsien and Li-yang-hsien, while he compelled the retreat of the Rebels at Yang-shai. He finally captured Chang-chow fu, thus continually heaping meritorious acts one upon another. Moreover, he has, in the most satisfactory and peaceful manner, completed the disbandment of the disciplined army. There was no uncertainty, (or vacillation) about Gordon's services; he was ever inspired with that bravery and strategic talent which enabled him to prove so formidable. He was also intimately acquainted with the relations existing between China and other powers. It is therefore most necessary for us to mark our approval. Gordon is therefore presented with the Yellow Jacket, and a short peacock's feather. He is also presented with the official robes and paraphernalia belonging to the rank of Ti-tu. Thus will our favour be manifested to him.

NORTH-CHINA BRANCH OF THE ROYAL ASIATIC SOCIETY.

THE third regular meeting of the North-China Branch of the Royal Asiatic Society was held on Wednesday evening the 6th July, at the Shanghai Library, Sir Harry S. Parkes, K.C.B., President, in the Chair. Present:—Dr. Henderson, V.P., Dr. Lamprey, 67th Regt, Messrs. T. Hanbury, Morris, Gould, Andrews, Gundry, Alabaster, Jamieson, Anderson, Lieut. Wood, and Capt. Drummond 2nd Belooch Regt., Messrs. Cull, Thorne, Gamble, Marston, &c, &c.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed.

Mr. HANBURY stated that he had received from Emile Oppert Esq., several volumes presented to the Library of this branch society by the Imperial Royal Zoological & Botanical Society of Vienna. Sir Harry Parkes announced that he had received an official report as to the Rugged Islands, drawn up by Commander Wilds of H.M.S. Swallow, which report he would take an early opportunity of laying before the society.

The following gentlemen were then proposed as Resident members:—

Proposed by Doctor HENDERSON, seconded by R. A. JAMIESON, Esq.,—

Captains Fairbrother and Drummond, and Lieutenant Wood, 2nd Belooch Regt., Doctor Miller, C. J. King, W. Cheshire, and J. K. Davis, Esqrs.

Proposed by T. HANBURY, Esq., seconded by Doctor HENDERSON, J. S. Mackintosh, Esq.,

Proposed by C. ALABASTER, Esq., seconded by R. S. GUNDRY, Esq., H. E. Ka, late Prefect of Sungkang.

Proposed by J. CULL, Esq., seconded by J. THORNE, Esq., A. A. Cross and W. W. King Esqrs.

The paper for the evening by Dr. Henderson was then read on the "Character of the Chinese." The writer commenced by declaring that the man who could see nothing amiable or praiseworthy among the Chinese people, never gave them an opportunity of seeing that he has any ingredient of that sort in his own composition; and he who has not gained their respect and good will has not taken much pains to deserve them. Doctor Henderson then glanced rapidly at the national character of a few of the nations of antiquity and contrasted them with the character of the Chinese. Although he spoke highly of the indefatigable industry of the Chinese, and of their attainments in the practical department of the arts, he mentioned that they have no strictly scientific knowledge, and said that as the study of abstract and natural sciences appears to them unproductive of any immediate benefit, they all but ignore or practically neglect it. The Chinese are not famous for their ideas of beauty, sublimity, proportion, perspective, drawing, sculpture, picturesqueness, harmony or melody; of pneumatics, hydrostatics, electricity, geology, mineralogy, meteorology, physiology, optics and many cognate sciences, they know literally nothing. The Æsthetic taste of the Chinese is decidedly low, though they have largely cultivated the science of Ethics. Although the Chinese are essentially defective in the sciences and higher branches of art, they are not behind any nation in practical ingenuity, and in the industrial department of the arts; for in some branches of these, their ingenuity, skill, perseverance and patience have never been excelled. For who does not admire their elaborate engraving on ivory, stone and wood, or their manufacture of rich silks and satins, their light and tastefully designed gauzes, their splendid embroidery, their inimitable porcelain, their exquisite delicate filagree work in gold and silver, which cannot be surpassed for delicacy and cheapness by any European nation, their large and handsome porcelain jars, their elegant flower-stands, their smooth cutting of the hard and valuable jade-stone, their excellent lacquered ware, their antique bronze vessels enriched with curious devices and resting on richly carved pedestals, also their brilliant colours, their finely painted flowers, costumes, birds and insects, on their celebrated and inimitable pith paper? All these and much more, combine to shew and to impress upon us not only their skill in handicraft and exquisite manipulation, but also, that they possess an inventive genius of no mean capacity, for we must recollect that many of the arts above enumerated were in existence and largely practised in China, when we and other west rn nations were in a state of barbarism.

The writer then went on to consider seriatim under different heads, the Chinese National Character and Mutability, their Religions, or Devotional sentiment, their Morals, their Provision for Par nts and aged relatives, their Improvident habits and Recklessness, their Superstition and Idolatry, their Conceit and Vanity, their Humanity, their Fortitude, their Docility and their Genius."

Before, during, and for some time after the days of Confucius, China was divided into several small kingdoms, all of which acknowledged the supremacy of the Emperors, while each within itself possessed all the power of a feudal state. Since the union of China with Manchu Tartary two national characters have existed in the Empire, reciprocally affecting, if not depending on each other. The qualities of the wild Scythian character appear to have been much modified and softened down by the more polished, mild and pliable character of the Chinese. The passive cowardliness of the sons of Han has also been partly removed by the fiercer and warlike spirit of the Scythian, so that the rude courage of the Tartar and the deceit and intrigue of the Chinese have now in some measure united in constituting the national character of China, and this mean of character, so far as it exists, will make China a troublesome if not a formidable foe, for what can not be done by force, may be done by fraud, and vice versa. It is doubtful, however, whether these opposite and often contending qualities of character will long remain; the chances are that, like oil and water, they may for a time adhere by mechanical agitation, but when left to themselves and allowed to settle, each will resolve into its natural, primitive and proper condition. Interested and turbulent statesmen may persevere with every art and artifice endeavouring to coalesce these discordant and contending elements, all however will end in confusion and if they do not work her complete ruin speedily, they will assuredly damage her internal resources and leave her an easier prey to her foes at a future period.

Under the head of Religion some interesting and characteristic remarks were made. The writer mentioned the three principal sects in China. The Confucianists, who merely boast a system of ethics. Confucianism is the so-called religion of the literati. 2nd., The Taouists, who profess to have the liquor of rejuvenescence or immortality, which if a man drink he will never die. 3rd. The Buddhists, who comprize most of the common people. The writer remarked (we believe truly) that "no one is inspired by any religion in China, no martyrs suffer, no fanaticism or intolerant zeal is ever felt, a Chinaman has no faith or creed that he will die for, fight for, or even be zealous for."

The paper, of which the above is an abstract, was followed by an able speech from the Chair. No member volunteering any remarks on the subject, it was announced that at the next meeting of the society a paper would be read by E. C. Bowra, Esq., to be entitled First Impressions of Northern China.

Mr. Alabaster, on behalf of Mr. Kingsmill, presented a series of rubbings taken from monuments in the great temple at Wuchang. At the request of the President, supported by the general voice of the meeting, Mr. Alabaster made a few illustrative remarks.

A vote of thanks to the lecturer was proposed by Sir Harry Parkes, and seconded by Mr. Hanbury.

A vote of thanks to the gentlemen who had made presentations to the Library was proposed by Mr. Jamieson and seconded by Mr. Gould.

Mr. Thorne proposed, and Mr. Cull seconded a vote of thanks to Mr. Alabaster for the graphic and interesting description he had given of the Wuchang rubbings.

The meeting separated with a vote of thanks to the President.

MISCELLANEOUS.

HOMŒOPATHIC Practitioners, and the Medical Profession generally, recommend Cocoa as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of Homœopathy was first introduced into this country, there were to be obtained no preparations of Cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in its crude state, or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice.

J. EPPS, of London, Homœopathic chemist, was induced in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through, as to be acceptable to the delicate stomach, and a most desirable breakfast beverage. For General use

GABRIEL.

PRACTICAL TREATISE ON THE TEETH.

THOSE well-known dentists Messrs. GABRIEL have issued a new edition of their "Practical Treatise on the Human Teeth, their Loss and Restoration." The subjects treated upon are the growth of the teeth, their decay, and the mode of adapting artificial teeth during the various stages of destruction, precautions as to extraction, the stopping of teeth, &c. A series of simple receipts as to their preservation are also given, of which persons may avail themselves previously to obtaining professional advice. The plan pursued for so many years by Messrs. GABRIEL in stopping teeth and the more elaborate art of mechanical dentistry are explained, and examples given, to show the success of their treatment. The book is worthy of perusal, as emanating from those who have had a large experience in connection with the subject on which it treats. Messrs. GABRIEL have establishments in London, Liverpool, and Birmingham. Extract from "Chester Record," January 8th, 1864.—As may be seen by our advertising columns, Messrs. Gabriel supply Artificial Teeth on their patented system, irrespective of distance or climate.
